“ I heard the news today of Leighton’s passing while fishing with Paul Browning and Lonnie Devore. We all had the privilege of playing baseball for Leighton back in the early 80’s. We were the Belk Lindsey Cardinals. Oh how the Leighton stories began to flow. Imagine being on a boat in the middle of the ocean with three ex Cardinals. We were so blessed to have experienced playing baseball for Leighton. Three grown men getting choked up talking about all the great memories from 40 years ago, and the lessons learned from Leighton.

Although, I had not seen Leighton in over 30 years, I thought of him often. I was thirteen years old when I started playing for Leighton. I was an immature and insecure boy. Leighton taught me to believe in myself and to do the right thing. Don’t makes excuses for failure. Thank you Leighton for all the great memories and life long friendship’s formed because of you. Thank you for giving your time as a volunteer to help young boys become fine young men. You will truly be missed. I love you Coach Leighton Cornell. Rest In Peace my friend.

“ There was a song from the 50's by The Teddy Bears called “To Know Him is to Love Him” that described Leighton perfectly. He was one of a kind and an excellent person to be around. He loved his family. He was a loving, caring, gracious, man who could entertain the warts off a frog. He was a joking fun loving individual that could prank people, but was an easy target himself.

Jenny would often pull APRIL Fool's jokes him. One of our all time favorites was Jenny replacing the bills in his wallet with Monopoly Money. And, of course, when coffee was made in the evening, Leighton would always insist on decaf. Jenny told us that years ago she bought a can of Sanka and after using the contents, she saved the can and would buy Maxwell House and pour into the Sanka can. When Leighton would remind her, she simply showed him the Sanka can and he was satisfied.

He was constantly introducing Bob as someone special. One time they went to Orange Memorial to visit one of his elderly uncles and the room was full of old people, when entering, he introduce Bob as his Pastor. You should have seen the Seniors trying to get up out of their chairs to shake hands with his Pastor.

He was always introducing Bob as a retired quarterback from the Denver Broncos and after several exchanges of data, most would say “Yeah, I remember him”.

If he thought that he offended you or hurt you in any way, he would try extensively hard to make things right.

Good Times we had: Johnny's Pizza, motor cycles, Little league, officiating ballgames, moving chickens to Eatonville, etc.
