

Enrique "Kiko" Alicea

April 30, 1975 - April 23, 2020

Enrique "Kiko" Alicea, age 44 of Dundee, Florida passed away Thursday April 23, 2020. Kiko was born in Chicago, Illinois on April 30, 1975.

Enrique was a proud member of the US Army. He was a Military Policeman that was involved in many missions that kept our borders safe. Afterwards, he worked at several different jobs until he found a passion for Information Technologies. Through his drive and determination built his own business.

Enrique was a proud Member of the Ruckus Tainos. He enjoyed weightlifting, MMA and Combat Sports, especially Irish Bare Knuckle Boxing. Health conscious, so he loved to hang out at the gym. He was NFL enthusiast, but especially Da Bears. He loved MLB, but especially Da Cubs. Loved the Da Bulls, especially during the Jordan era. This passion for sports lead him to become a coach for wrestling , baseball, football, and basketball. Which inspired a whole new generation of athletes to include his son Dimitri and his nephew Carlos.

Kiko was a Car Enthusiast that enjoyed classics; such as Betsy, a custom project he intended to embark on. He was very fashionable and had a closet that looked like a mini Hollister. He loved to DJ House and Rave music for hours at a time with lighting and the whole works as you have witnessed on Facebook Live.

Enrique was a kind person but, was a straight shooter whenever necessary. The type of man that you would want on your team because he was a winner at heart. He was an animal lover as evidenced by his range of pets which included his dog Rocky, cat Letty, and turtle Greeny. He was also an environmental activist. He loved the rainforest and coral reef.

Kiko would uplift people in times of need, had a kind heart and accepted everybody for who they are. He is already missed by all of our friends and family because all of the great times he shared with them.

“ A wise man once told me,

“Never stop being a good person because of bad people”.

“Invest in yourself and the ones who truly love you will always be there”.

“Don’t try to change people, let them be who they are”.

This wise soul once asked me, “what sets happiness apart from joy?” and I pondered this for a few days before I could reply. You see, happiness is a feeling that is brought on by events. It’s an in the moment stimulant, but it’s not guaranteed to be everlasting. The feeling of joy is overflowing. It comes from within. It’s not based on an event or a dependency on something external that lights the flame. Joy is waking up every day, the grateful feeling for another breathe, it’s the fire we claim in our soul. It’s the relationship with self. Peace is priceless and without it we flounder. There is a distinct difference between Happiness and Joy.

I’ll always remember his words....

“One hand washes the other”

“Everything always comes out in the wash”

“When pointing a finger everyone should see the three fingers pointing back at them and none of us are perfect or always right”.

One of the last things he said to me recently was “you are royalty, FIGHT FIRE WITH FIRE”.

For many of us this loss feels like a hard fierce fire, but we have a choice to either sink or we can live on with the Fire that pushes us beyond what we ever thought we could be.

So please in his honor, invest in yourselves, find the PEACE so you can own the JOY.

Happy Birthday my dear friend. I know you're looking down on us.

You're Forever an angel.

“ Kiko was a devoted father, everything he did was for Dimitri. I never had to worry about any decisions he made when it came to our son because he always had his best interest.

From the first day we brought him home from the hospital, he told me he found his purpose again and Dimitri would be a ‘champ’ and boy was he not joking, the kid played every sport and exceeded. when I signed him up to play basketball he told me that it’s my responsibility lol guess what he ended up coaching and taking the team to the playoffs. Kiko lived and breathed Dimitri! his sole purpose in life was his son.

Im happy that Dessaray and Kiko were as close as they were, I would be lying if I didn’t I was a little jealous but at the end of the day super happy about their relationship and glad that she and Marcus became part if the Ruckus it was a way for them to bond and reconnect. It made her feel so special that she was introduced as his daughter.

I feel as this is a bad dream and every morning I have to relive the same nightmare. To know that my sons best friend is no longer here. When I look at my son it breaks my heart because I know he will have a tough road ahead and that I will not be able to take his pain away not will I be able to fill that void in his life.

I’m glad that my last conversation with Kiko was just like the old days, he asked if I would come spend a couple of nights to cook for him and D, I had to laugh, ‘come on you and your sis can cook for us’... we had our ups and downs but overall there was always more good.

I will truly miss him.

Love 💕💕 Jackie

“ Kiko I'm still waiting to be woken up from this nightmare, it doesn't feel real. I'm so glad that we were able to share a life full of memories. Thank you for always having your baby sisters back and for showing me what unconditional love looks like. I will always remember our talks your laughter you child like traits your passion for everything/everybody you loved and most of all I will miss your beautiful smile. I will carry you everywhere I go and will keep your memory alive. You are in a better place then us and I know that you are resting in peace. God bless you always ❤️
