

Kaitlyn Arianna Maya

December 13, 2005 - February 24, 2019

I want to say I will miss you singing, running and laughing.

Yet I didn't have that with you my KK instead, I had the let me ask, how your heart rate was, how was your respiration's and if you had a fever that day. Did you have to be suctioned more than normal today or did you have a seizure. That was our normal the hope of getting threw the day without having to go to the ER for treatment. I finally realized all along the choice you made it was your time and I wanted to be selfish and keep you because that was all you and I ever known.

You see even though these were the first question I asked I would walk in and I would say, How are we Kaitlyn and sure enough those big light hazel eyes would open, you would try to find me I know baby I know. Our daily conversation blink 1 for no, blink 2 for yes. Or me scratching your nose and I would get the jerky movements almost smacking me in the face sure maybe they were involuntary but none the less my peace knowing u knew I was there. I want to say I was selfish for 13 years and till your last breath you taught me something Kaitlyn. How strong, courageous and brave you where I told you to fly baby fly go be at peace and you listened to your mother but who wouldn't right we think we know best. Dance in the golden street talk to grandma Monse and La Mamita(Maria) introduce them and tell them that we love them to take care of you while I get there. I am not sure if it will get easier kid, without you here. All I know is that you don't have to worry about infections or if you are going to have a good day free of what you thought was a tough day my love! I knew you had a way of letting the nurses know, hey I'm not feeling this and I am sure some of you must agree. Thank you for all you have done and for loving your job and my kid! Kaitlyn no more feeding tube, no more breathing machine, and no more medication you get to be a kid a normal kid in heaven! Take notes okay and when I get there share them with me I want to know it all okay. Love you to infinity and beyond kiddo!

Always and Forever

Mom, Dad, Yariel and Syomara!
