“ Sandy and I had so many good times together that I find it difficult to pick a particular event as the most memorable. But we very recently chuckled about our visit to Havana to discuss the possibility of getting permission to set up a 500,000 watt radio station there on a frequency that would cover all 48 states sufficiently. This was well before Castro, so it seemed a plausible idea. We did not wait for a final decision, but the memory of our meeting with the Minister of Communications still gave both of us plenty of laughs over the years.

If I had never had another friend...Sandy would have been lol that I really needed....he was in every sense the best friend anyone could ask for.
