In 1963, they settled in Orlando, where Linda built a warm and lively home for her growing family.

Linda lived her life with energy, elegance, and an extraordinary gift for friendship. She formed deep, lasting relationships and was known as a fiercely loyal and fun-loving friend for decades. Whether on the tennis courts or golf courses, she was always ready for a match, a laugh, or a gathering afterward, often becoming the heart of whatever room she was in.

She had a natural ability to bring people together, with a warm smile and quick wit that made everyone feel welcome.

Her legacy is one of joy, connection, and unwavering love for her family and friends. She will be deeply missed and forever cherished.

“ I spent many days at the Carey's house. I rode my bike over before I drove and hung out there. Linda always made me feel welcome. The house was full of laughter much of the time. I just remember thinking what a beauty she was... Her boys certainly loved on her.
