“ This was not funny at the time, but it is now. When we all (Mary, Mamie & Simmie) lived in the trailer park & Mama lived across the field (1976?) Lonnie brought his ball over & we started playing in the field. Lonnie was young & couldn't play well, so Simmie wouldn't let him play. (It was his ball!!!) Simmie had recently purchased a truck that came with a small boat, motor & trailer. Lonnie was so mad, he took the keys out of the boat & threw them in the woods behind us. We searched for days, to no avail. We had to get a locksmith to help us & it cost much more than if we had bought our own ball, lol. RIP Lonnie.

“ I have a lot of good memories with Lonnie, but my most recent is him and I talking about doing something together. he wanted him and I to start buying cars fixing them up and sale them and work our way up to building hot rods. He would say we could build better cars then the gas monkey guys. He would talk about us building a mobile DJ trailer, he had it all figured out, he was just trying to convince me it was a good idea. And then there was his songs, he would sing to me on the phone songs he wrote. He wanted me to figure out how we could get them out in the for everyone to hear, he was proud of his songs and from what I heard he had good reason to be. I am going to miss him really bad and wish that I had the chance to build hot rod with him.
I love you Bro, God Bless you.
