“Titi Nancy inspired me in many ways that I can’t recount here, but allow me to share this: I remember her tenacity in completing her academic goals. She always pushed herself to be the very best in everything she did. This always inspired me to reach for my own best.

We shared many memories, but the one thing that stands out the most was her willingness to give and not take. She gave me the opportunity to stay with her and the family before my military career began, and she never once gave me any stipulations about my extended visit. This was her nature—giving.

She would give anything for her children, extended family, and beloved friends. We were absolutely blessed to have had her for as long as we did.

In recent times, I hated to see her in pain, especially in her final days. I’m relieved that her anguish has finally passed. Our pain has only just begun, but may our memories console us during this time of loss.

I miss you, Titi Nancy. I wish I had held you longer when I said goodbye last Friday, not knowing it would be our last embrace. You were the best of us, and I hope I made you proud in some way.

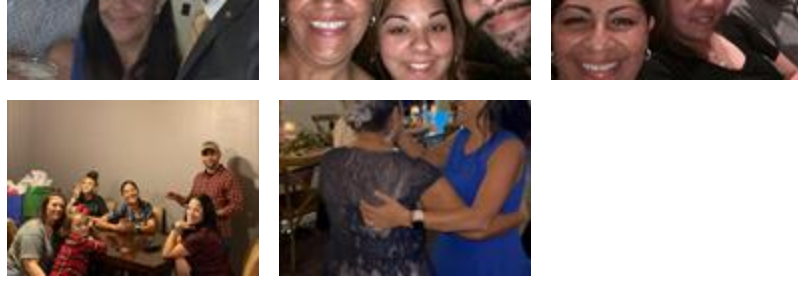

My love for you will never fade or be forgotten.

With love, grace, and affection, may you rest in peace.

With love and devotion,
