We had Pat's memorial service yesterday. Most of the family was there. We laughed and had a good time together. It is time to remember her for all the smiles, laughter and great times we all had together. She would want us to move forward and get our lives back together. I miss you so much baby. It is hard, very hard but I will try. All of us will try. May you finally rest in peace. You should be at your daddys side. I love you so so very very much.

“ *Dear Mom,
I'm missing you more than my heart can bare!
How do I make this? What do I do? I'm still in a state of disbelief, I just can't believe this has happened. I know if you where here right now you would be telling me, as you have so many times when I've been confused..."Amy, you pull yourself together, relax and straighten up! Just let it go and you take care of yourself!" Just talking to you always made me feel better. So everyday I hear your voice in my head. Hopefully one day my heart will start to listen. Till then I'm going to try to relax, straighten up and take care of myself. I love you momma, always and forever!*

“ My dear sweet Mother you will never know how badly I miss you. I am going to miss our phone calls that were made almost daily and when there weren't calls there were text messages. You and I shared a lot of stories over the years. I can not express how so very thankful I am for the time we had in Oct of 2012. We had so much fun together, window shopping and dreaming big, and our plant and flowers shopping for the house. I told you when you bought them and hung them in the tree I would forever take care of them and make sure they live strong because that was my connection to you when you left to go home. Not a day went by that I didn't worry about you. These last 5 months that I was with you everyday, I have never seen a more stronger women than you. I can only hope that I can be half the women you were. I love you so very much. I am missing your warm heart your happy smile and our long talks. As I have said before none of that is ever going to compare to me missing the very most seeing you, touching you, getting wonderful hugs and kisses only a mom can give. I PROMISE, not a day will go by that I wont think of you. I LOVE YOU MOM! ALWAYS AND FOREVER!! ~ (as we've said. I'll see you in my dreams).

Your loving daughter
Amy

“ To all my friends and family, on the morning of 4-18-13, at 3:15 am, my Mother-in-law passed away. While her life was short-lived (only 67 years old), according to the MANY stories I've heard it was not short on life or love. I will miss her smile and sharp wit the most. Rest in Peace Patsy Raymer, my MIL. Love, your SIL
