“ Tiff, Tiffy. Words cannot describe how this new hits home. Divine love and light towards your family and your transition into the spiritual world. You deserve nothing, but smiles and heartfelt love. I remember us talking everyday about our life struggles as teenagers and now I look back like wow, little did we know. Tiffanys stick together and I wish I was there to prevent this. Angel love is real and I know you're now supporting your family is ways you always wanted. Fly high, Tiffy. <3

“ I will miss you so much. Will never forget the million of snaps you sent me while I was out sick. And you were the first person to hug me when I got back. I'm gonna miss talking to you and the hugs. I love you Tiff 😞

“ Wow. What to say. You were my work family. A family I came to enjoy just as much as my actual family. You were the loud, bombastic, sweet, funny, positive little sister that was always there to pick on me, but also to pick me up when I was having a bad day. I'll miss when you shared your amazing homemade lunches with me and promised to make some of them for me one day(not spicy because I'm a wuss). I'll miss sharing stories of our stupid customers we just tried to help. I'll miss the hellos at the start of the day and the goodbyes and occasional hugs (sometimes they were needed!) at the end of the day. I'll miss you lady, and all the great things I know you would have done. Keep watch over the rest of us struggling through this life, because your struggle is over, but not forgotten. RIP Tiff.

“ From the first day I met you, you had this big personality. I couldn't help but like you. You were always talking about your family and dogs. I still can't believe that you are gone. I'm just happy to say I had the chance to know you. Fly high baby girl. You are truly missed.

My sweet Tiffany, you became my step daughter when you were 10 years old and what a joy that was. You have Tony a sister to talk to, a sister to play with and a sister to love. You were the best and I know that God will enjoy your company and your beautiful spirit! Rest In Peace my Sweet 😊 Angel.

Fly High Baby girl. You were an Angel on Earth and now you've gained your wings. This is a lost we are not meant to understand, but you are okay and you are here always in everyone's hearts and memories. Our loss is your gain. Just keep flying beautiful. You will forever be missed.
