“ I don't have many memories with Victor, but what I remember most was his smile. To my dearest friend Josephine, grief is the last stage of love and then eternal love takes over. There are no words to describe the sadness I see in your eyes while you grieve your beloved father. However, what I see behind the sadness is strength, wisdom, and undying love for the man you called dad. My prayer for you is that you always remember the laughs & good times you shared with your dad. I pray that you continue to see traits of him in yourself and in your children. Allow the wonderful memories and eternal love get you through the tough days forever more.
